It’s simple:
Serve your country; we’ll help you pay for school
Serve your country; we’ll help relieve your student loans

Right now less than 1% of our nation serves in national service programs, like AmeriCorps, AND our military.

However, this is not out of lack of interest. National Service programs receive more applicants than they have spots to fill due to lack of funding.

JOHN’S PLAN
Invest more in National Service programs to expand opportunities.
Create a Cabinet Level position for National Service Programs.

THE GOAL
To have one million people serving at one time.
Student debt is burdening our youth. We need to find a way to make higher education more affordable.

John’s plan does just that.

John has developed his plan to make college more affordable by expanding National Service. It’s simple. Serve your country, we’ll help you pay for school or pay back your student loans.

For every year of service, service members would receive 2-years of in-state tuition to use at an institution of their choosing. Whether your path is trade-school or a 4-year university, higher-education can become a possibility for all.

Not only would this help students pay for school and give back to communities, it would also pay for itself. For every dollar that is invested in National Service programs there is an almost $4 return rate to the community.

John’s plan does just that.

As the great John F. Kennedy said:

“My fellow Americans, ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country.”
